WILL CONFER ON PARTY MATTERS

Republican National Committee Meets Dec. 16.

OFFICERS ISSUE THE CALL

Decision to Hold Meeting in Washington Results From Repeated Requests of Leaders That an Opportunity Be Given to Revise the Rules of the Republican Organization.

Washington, Oct. 6.—The Republican national committee will meet in Washington on Tuesday, Dec. 16, to confer on party matters. A formal call for the meeting has been issued. The meeting was decided upon at a conference of Chairman Charles D. Hill and Secretary James B. Reynolds.

"The Republican national committee is hereby called to meet in Washington on Tuesday, Dec. 16, at 11 o'clock to confer on party matters and to take any action which may be deemed advisable," the notice says.

The decision to call the national committee results from the repeated requests of Republican leaders that an opportunity be given to revise the rules of the Republican party.

The principal changes demanded are in the basis of representation from the Southern states at national conventions and in the method of electing delegates from states that have primary laws covering that subject.

The New York state Republican convention held recently adopted strong resolutions favoring the holding of a Republican national convention at an early date to accomplish this revision of party rules.

MILLER TO OPPOSE GRONNA

Attorney General Announces His Candidacy for the Senate.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 6.—Andrew Miller, attorney general of North Dakota, will be a candidate for the United States senate to succeed Senator Gronna. He made this announcement.

"I have investigated the conditions in North Dakota and am confident I am stronger today than ever before. I have had a great deal of encouragement from friends over the state and have become convinced that I stand as good a chance to win the nomination as any one. While I have no personal knowledge of the fact I assume, of course, that Senator Gronna will be a candidate for re-election and that other candidates will also be in the race."

LOOK FOR RATE DECISIONS

Supreme Court May Hand Down Opinions Oct. 20.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Rate decisions of high importance are expected in the supreme court on its first decision day, Oct. 20, although the court itself has given no indications of its intentions.

Justice Hughes is expected to clear up the so called state rate cases by announcing the court's decision in the Kentucky rate case, involving rates on distillery supplies from Ohio river cities to distillery centers in Kentucky.

He may also announce the court's decision in the Indiana case, involving the validity of class rates on freight between Indianapolis and towns in Indiana along the Vandalia railroad.

ROBERT A. KIRK IS DEAD

Prominent St. Paul Business Man Is Stricken.

St. Paul, Oct. 6.—Robert Alexander Kirk, president of the firm of Farwell, Ozman, Kirk & Co., former president of the St. Paul chamber of commerce and prominently identified with commercial, educational and philanthropic activities of St. Paul, is dead.

Infirmitudes attendant upon old age and contributory causes were responsible for his death. He had been ill several months and had been confined to his bed for a month. A week ago he lost consciousness and his family was at his bedside when death came.

For more than thirty years Mr. Kirk had been a prominent figure in the commercial, civic and educational life of St. Paul.

Buddhists Send Message to President Wilson.

Tokio, Oct. 6.—Buddhists, assembled in mass meeting in the Hongwanji temple, sent a message to President Wilson bearing on the Japanese-American relations. The message, forwarded to the president, follows:

"For the sake of universal peace and the progress of humanity, which are the ideals of Buddhism, we in paying homage to the president earnestly wish for the development of a friendship between Japan and the United States based on liberty and justice with the exclusion of religious and racial prejudices."

Poet Accused of Being Stowaway on the Oceanic.

Southampton, Oct. 6.—Harry Kemp, an American, who writes poetry and who once eloped with the wife of Upton Sinclair, will be arraigned before a magistrate to answer the charge of stowing away on the steamship Oceanic.

The poet shipped on the Oceanic as a stowaway prior to the steamer's departure from New York. He was without money, but, as he remarked, he had an irrepressible desire to visit England.

Eight Firemen Hurt in Seattle Times Building Fire.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 6.—Eight firemen were injured and $75,000 damage was done in a fire, said to be incendiary, which gutted the pressroom of the Seattle Times. The loss is covered by insurance. The Times will issue from the presses of the Post-Intelligencer.

The fire, according to a stereotyper, burst out in a moment from a locker that had not been used for twelve hours. A stifling smoke hampered the firemen and when the flames were thought to be under control an explosion of gas injured eight. Six are in a hospital.

Superior Judge John E. Humphries, whose courtroom for a week has been filled with persons awaiting or receiving sentence for defiance of the court's order against street speaking, sent a long statement to the newspapers in which he said:

"In my opinion those persons who signed the resolutions of defiance of my court are guilty of the fire in the Times building."

JOY RIDE ENDS IN DEATH

Barber Killed When Auto Collides With Logging Train.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 6.—Louis E. Padden, proprietor of a local barber shop, died as the result of an auto accident.

In company with two others Padden chartered an automobile for a joy ride. When about a mile and a half from the city the machine collided with a logging train on the Canadian Northern railway. The automobile was wrecked and Padden's right leg and right arm were crushed and he received internal injuries.

The driver of the car was slightly bruised and scratched up, but the other occupants of the car escaped without any injuries.

Padden was about thirty years old.

FATAL AIR ACCIDENT.

Barcelona, Oct. 6.—During a balloon ascension a spectator accidentally caught hold of the guide rope and was carried up. The aeronaut, in an attempt to assist him, fell and was killed. The spectator retained his grip and landed unhurt a few miles from the city.

VISITS BOY IN HOSPITAL

President Calls on Lad Injured by His Auto.

Washington, Oct. 6.—President Wilson went to Providence hospital and visited Robert Crawford, the fifteen-year-old messenger boy who was struck by the president's automobile. The president sat at the boy's bedside while the youngster related how he was trying to dodge stones being thrown at him by another boy and turned his bicycle in front of the automobile without seeing it.

"I didn't know you were in the machine," he said. He showed Mr. Wilson his injured ankle and bruised knee. "I'll be all right in a few days," he said. "I had better be, or I'll lose my job."

POWER, SECRET OF WILSON SUCCESS

Without Patronage Awards His Hands Would Be Tied.

MONEY BILL MAY YET FAIL.

Fear That Absence of Republicans Will Leave House Without Quorum. Lively Fight to Be Waged For Majority Leadership When Underwood Retires, With Palmer in Lead.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—"Get behind the president" is a slogan that often comes up from the people and makes the executive powerful in legislation.

"If we should take the power of appointment from the president, take away the federal patronage and leave him to administer and execute the laws we pass there would be no such power in the White House as we have forced upon us every year." That observation was made by a congressman who was once a federal officeholder and has been long enough in congress to know how congressmen in both houses are influenced by patronage.

The men back home who want the offices do not see why their senators and representatives should haggle over rates in a tariff or forms in a currency bill and lose out on appointments. So they want their representatives to "get behind the president."

How About Economy?
Much is said in party platforms about economy. Much is said in both houses of congress about economy. The Democrats began their first lease of power with bold resolutions for economy. But congress does not economize. Although the Democrats cut down on the army and navy, they had other increased expenditures, particularly for buildings and rivers and harbors, and their first congress showed they had spent more than the preceding congress.

There is another view. Those men who make no pretense about economy, who get every dollar they can for their states and districts, who never overlook a chance to secure something from the public treasury, are returned again and again to the senate and to the house. "People do not object to large appropriations if the money is wisely expended and for their benefit," declared Congressman Austin of Tennessee, who is always found on the side of large appropriations for public works.

May Not Reach a Vote.
"I doubt very much whether the currency bill will ever reach a vote or if there will be a quorum here at this session to vote upon it," was the guess of one of the Democratic senators. It is rather strange that the Republicans were willing to maintain a quorum in order to help pass the tariff bill, but they will not stay for the currency bill. There is some reason in it, however, for until there was a tariff bill passed the country would be in a turmoil over it. There had to be a Democratic revision.

Who Will Lead?
With a general understanding that Oscar Underwood will retire from the house whether he succeeds to the senate or not, there is a mighty nice little contest going on for leadership. There is a contest of the south against the north. Claude Kitchin of North Carolina is next in line, but there will be a mighty protest against having the chairman of the ways and means committee. Kitchin is the ranking member, and Hull of Tennessee, Rainey of Illinois and Dixon of Indiana rank both Peters and Palmer.

Would Bet on Palmer.
While Palmer is below two southern men and three northern men, I would bet on him. Pennsylvania was the keystone of the Wilson arch at Baltimore. A. Mitchell Palmer built and fitted that keystone. To Palmer more than to almost any other one man was due the credit of Wilson's nomination. He carried Pennsylvania for the New Jersey governor when the big delegation from that state came to the very much, and he held that delegation for Wilson through all the hard weary battles. Woodrow Wilson will still be a power in shaping conditions in the house when Underwood retires from the leadership.

"Daddy" Champ.
The house was one day discussing the subject of a system of public buildings by which all within a certain limit of cost might be built upon the same plans. Speaker Clark became interested in the debate.

"I am the daddy of this idea of standardization of public buildings," said Champ. "I have fought for it for fifteen years." He then asked Chairman Frank Clark of the public buildings committee what climate had to do with the shape and dimensions of the buildings.

"A good deal," replied the Florida man, and he went on to explain how damp climates affected brickwork and how different dimensions affected the air conditions in different climates.

CHAMP CLARK FOR PEACE

Speaker Declares for International Disarmament.

Louisville, Oct. 6.—Speaker Champ Clark of the house of representatives declared for international disarmament as the surest means of guaranteeing world peace in an address delivered at the closing exercises of the Perry centennial celebration.

He praised the valor of the American soldiers in the War of 1812 and declared the crowning glory of their heroism was the 100 years of peace which have followed between Great Britain and the United States.

TRAPPER LOSES HIS LIFE IN FLAMES

Fire Sweeps Business Section of Warroad, Minn.

Warroad, Minn., Oct. 6.—Warroad was visited by another disastrous fire, destroying the entire business section of Main street. Fire broke out in the kitchen of the Slatten boarding house, about the center of Main street, and, due to a strong northeasterly wind, this section was soon a mass of flames, spreading both east and west. Owing to the buildings being a few feet apart and of frame structure it was impossible to control the flames.

The Warroad fire department was on the scene in a few minutes after the alarm was turned in. Good work confined the fire to Main street only. It was only through the work of the fire department that the remainder of the city was saved. The Lakewood hotel, the only building saved on Main street, one of the largest and best known hotels in Northern Minnesota, was in constant danger.

The only fatality was that of Harry Gibson, a trapper. He was sleeping on the second floor of the Slatten boarding house.

TWO BURNED IN WRECKAGE

Conductor and Brakeman Lose Lives in Collision.

Great Falls, Mont., Oct. 6.—Conductor Harry Williams and brakeman W. C. Powers of extra freight No. 1835 on the Great Northern road were killed and their bodies burned to a crisp as the result of a rear end collision six miles west of this city, near Ulin. Their train was making its way to the city, followed by extra No. 1099, composed of a baggage car and caboose, which was returning from Butte after taking a special there to carry Hon. Cornelius R. Kelley and his party of copper mine magnates. The trains were running in the teeth of a snow blizzard.

After the crash the wreckage took fire and the freight caboose and two stock cars were burned.

BODY FOUND ON PRAIRIE

Woman Apparently Strangled With Heavy Cord.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—The body of a woman, believed to be that of Miss Ida Leegson, her clothing torn to shreds and scattered about her, was found on a prairie near Argo, Ill., a suburb.

She apparently had been strangled with a heavy cord which lay a few feet from the body.

Fresh automobile tracks indicated that the woman had been murdered at some distant place.

Cards and papers found among the woman's effects caused the belief that she may have been Miss Ida Leegson, who formerly lived at the home of W. K. Morris in this city.

Kidnapped, Then Murdered.
New York, Oct. 6.—The delivery in a macaroni box of the body of a golden haired little girl apparently murdered, to the Harlem morgue, set detectives at work on the theory that the child had been kidnapped for ransom and murdered when hope of obtaining the reward failed. The child's head was badly bruised and blackened.

TEAMS FINISH SCHEDULES

World's Championship Baseball Series on This Week.

New York, Oct. 6.—Major league baseball for 1913 has closed so far as the regular schedules are concerned. This week will see the start—and possibly the finish—of the world's championship series between the respective flag winners—the New Yorks of the National and the Phillies of the American league.

Preparation for the "big series" practically has monopolized baseball attention for the last few days, but several interesting contests for place have been going on among clubs in each organization.

ASKS DELAY IN THAW CASE

New York Officials Want Felker to Postpone Decision.

Concord, N. H., Oct. 6.—New York state officials have asked Governor Felker to postpone for a time his decision in the matter of the extradition of Harry K. Thaw from New Hampshire. The governor said he probably would grant the request.

Harry K. Thaw spent the day quietly at his hotel, where he received a visit from his sister, Mrs. George G. Whitney. After her departure Thaw issued a statement of 1,000 words in which he reviewed again rumors as to new legal proceedings in New York.

Henry Spencer Admits Committing Fourteen Murders.

WOMAN HIS LATEST VICTIM

Prisoner Relates to Chicago Police Officials How He Killed a Dancing Teacher at Wheaton, Ill., Recently and Asserts That Most of His Crimes Were Done for Robbery.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Mrs. Mildred Allison Rexroat, the dancing teacher who was shot to death at Wheaton, Ill., a week ago, was the victim of a modern Bluebeard, who, according to his own confession, had killed thirteen others in as many years.

Henry Spencer, arrested in a room near the South Side levee district, confessed that he not only killed Mrs. Rexroat, but that he had slain fourteen persons.

He was positively identified as the mysterious Mr. Spencer, with whom Mrs. Rexroat left Chicago on the night she was killed. Mrs. Rexroat's blood stained rattle suit case was found in his room, as was the revolver with which he said he had killed her.

The police, while in doubt as to the full truth of Spencer's amazing confession, are confident that they had found a wholesale murderer and that he will be proved to have killed at least several of those whose death he described in a long confession.

Spencer's story was so startling that it probably would have received no credence had not the bloody suitcase and the revolver confirmed at least part of his statement.

Killed Two Policemen.

All of his murders except two, he declared, had been for the purposes of robbery. The two policemen, Pennell and Devine, shot to death twelve years ago, he said he killed to escape being arrested.

"I intended to kill Mrs. A. J. Scofield, the proprietor of the rooming house where I have been living," he said. "If I hadn't been arrested at just this time I would have killed her."

Spencer was arrested in a rooming house near the South Side levee district. A woman with whom he is said formerly to have lived told the police that on the night of Sept. 26 Spencer came to her house. His shoes were covered with dust and he showed a diamond ring resembling the one worn by Mrs. Rexroat. He also took a revolver from his pocket and removed an empty shell which he threw from the window.

Among the other murders Spencer admitted were those of Policemen Pennell and Devine several years ago.

"I met Mrs. Rexroat two months ago at a dance hall," Spencer said in his written confession, "right after she got a divorce from her first husband. I got acquainted without any trouble; nobody introduced us. I took her home that night and we decided to be good friends."

Thought Him a Farmer.

"After that night I saw her three or four nights a week for several weeks. She thought I was a farmer and would be easy pickings, so I tried to keep that impression with her."

Spencer admitted that robbery was his only purpose in killing Mrs. Rexroat.

Spencer told the police that he had killed ten persons since his late release from the Illinois state penitentiary in September, 1912, and four, a man and a woman and Policemen Pennell and Devine before that.

Except in the slaying of the policemen who, Spencer said, were shot by himself and a companion named Murphy, in escaping for burglary, the killings were all for purposes of robbery.

The police cannot account for all of the victims Spencer claims to have slain. The only victim Spencer was able to name was Fannie C. Thompson, who probably is the woman he said he killed before he started on his alleged career of murder.

Spencer told his gruesome story calmly to Captain Halpin and a roomful of detectives and newspaper men. He said that he never drank nor smoked, but that he chewed tobacco and smoked opium. He had not, however, the appearance of a drug addict.

ENDS PRISON TERM.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Thomas Mott Osborne, chairman of the New York state commission on prison reform, after spending a week in Auburn prison as an inmate for the purpose of studying the prison system, ended his self-imposed term. Mr. Osborne was enthusiastic over the success of his experiment, which included a taste of every experience possible for an inmate to undergo aside from electrocution. He even committted misdeeds to cause his incarceration in the "dungeon" cells.

HAVING THORNY PATH IN SENATE

General Attention Now Centers on Currency Bill.

HEARINGS MAY LAST MONTH

Widely Divergent Views Held by Democratic Senators on Banking Reform and It Is Doubtful if a Measure Satisfactory to the Committee Can Reach the Senate Before the Middle of November.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Political Washington, relieved of the long drawn out consideration of the tariff, will focus its attention this week on the second of the Democratic reform measures—banking and currency legislation.

Although the administration currency bill easily passed the house its path in the senate admittedly is full of obstacles. At present the senate banking committee has not yet begun consideration of the bill, intending for at least ten days more to hear prominent bankers and financial experts. Predictions at the capital are general that for a month thereafter the senate committee will be at work on the measure.

While there was a unanimity of opinion on the principle of tariff revision widely divergent views are held by Democratic senators on banking reform. A strong desire for a single bank with branches under government control, instead of a regional reserve system of banks, has made its appearance in the informal discussion. Other changes of a far-reaching character are being suggested and generally it is regarded as doubtful if a bill satisfactory to the banking committee can reach the floor of the senate before the middle of November.

President Opposes Delay. At the White House there is a belief that the bill will be passed this session or be placed on the statute books before the first of the year. The president's disposition is to oppose any undue delay, for he believes prompt revision of the banking and currency system is necessary to meet the commercial expansion which he expects will follow the operation of the new tariff.

President Wilson believes a general decrease in the cost of living that will be felt by the rank and file of the country is not dependent alone on tariff revision, but upon prompt reform of the nation's monetary system, as well as careful amendment of the anti-trust laws.

As soon as the December session opens the administration will begin to center its attention on the anti-trust program. There is no intention at the White House to draft the administration measure. What is expected to happen is that the members of the house judiciary committee and the senate committee on interstate commerce will confer early with President Wilson and discuss the subject informally. The president hopes that before the anti-trust bill is launched in the two houses there will be a common agreement on it in the committees.

Barber Killed When Auto Collides With Logging Train.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 6.—Louis B. Padden, proprietor of a local barber shop, died as the result of an auto accident.

In company with two others Padden chartered an automobile for a joy ride. When about a mile and a half from the city the machine collided with a logging train on the Canadian Northern railway. The automobile was wrecked and Padden's right leg and right arm were crushed and he received internal injuries.

The driver of the car was slightly bruised and scratched up, but the other occupants of the car escaped without any injuries.

Padden was about thirty years old.

FATAL AIR ACCIDENT.

Barcelona, Oct. 6.—During a balloon ascension a spectator accidentally caught hold of the guide rope and was carried up. The aeronaut, in an attempt to assist him, fell and was killed. The spectator retained his grip and landed unhurt a few miles from the city.

VISITS BOY IN HOSPITAL

President Calls on Lad Injured by His Auto.

Washington, Oct. 6.—President Wilson went to Providence hospital and visited Robert Crawford, the fifteen-year-old messenger boy who was struck by the president's automobile.

The president sat at the boy's bedside while the youngster related how he was trying to dodge stones being thrown at him by another boy and turned his bicycle in front of the automobile without seeing it.

"I didn't know you were in the machine," he said. He showed Mr. Wilson his injured ankle and bruised knee. "I'll be all right in a few days," he said. "I had better be, or I'll lose my job."

POWER, SECRET OF WILSON SUCCESS

Without Patronage Awards His Hands Would Be Tied.

MONEY BILL MAY YET FAIL.

Fear That Absence of Republicans Will Leave House Without Quorum. Lively Fight to Be Waged For Majority Leadership When Underwood Retires, With Palmer in Lead.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Oct. 6.—[Special.]—"Get behind the president" is a slogan that often comes up from the people and makes the executive powerful in legislation.

"If we should take the power of appointment from the president, take away the federal patronage and leave him to administer and execute the laws we pass there would be no such power in the White House as we have forced upon us every year." That observation was made by a congressman who was once a federal officeholder and has been long enough in congress to know how congressmen in both houses are influenced by patronage.

The men back home who want the offices do not see why their senators and representatives should haggle over rates in a tariff or forms in a currency bill and lose out on appointments. So they want their representatives to "get behind the president."

How About Economy?

Much is said in party platforms about economy. Much is said in both houses of congress about economy. The Democrats began their first lease of power with bold resolutions for economy. But congress does not economize. Although the Democrats cut down on the army and navy, they had other increased expenditures, particularly for buildings and rivers and harbors, and their first congress showed they had spent more than the preceding congress.

There is another view. Those men who make no pretense about economy, who get every dollar they can for their states and districts, who never overlook a chance to secure something from the public treasury, are returned again and again to the senate and to the house. "People do not object to large appropriations if the money is wisely expended and for their benefit," declared Congressman Austin of Tennessee, who is always found on the side of large appropriations for public works.

May Not Reach a Vote.

"I doubt very much whether the currency bill will ever reach a vote or if there will be a quorum here at this session to vote upon it," was the guess of one of the Democratic senators. It is rather strange that the Republicans were willing to maintain a quorum in order to help pass the tariff bill, but they will not stay for the currency bill. There is some reason in it, however, for until there was a tariff bill passed the country would be in a turmoil over it. There had to be a Democratic revision.

Who Will Lead?

With a general understanding that Oscar Underwood will retire from the house where he succeeds to the senate or not, there is a mighty nice little contest going on for leadership. There is a contest of the south against the north. Claude Kitchin of North Carolina is next in line, but there will be a mighty protest against having the chairman of the ways and means from the same state as the chairman of the finance committee in the senate.

The northern candidates are A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania and Congressman Peters of Massachusetts. Both are members of the ways and means committee. Kitchin is the ranking member, and Hull of Tennessee, Rainey of Illinois and Dixon of Indiana rank both Peters and Palmer.

Would Bet on Palmer.

While Palmer is below two southern men and three northern men, I would bet on him. Pennsylvania was the keystone of the Wilson arch at Baltimore. A. Mitchell Palmer built and fitted that keystone. To Palmer more than to almost any other man was due the credit of Wilson's nomination. He carried Pennsylvania for the New Jersey governor when the big delegation from that state counted for very much, and he held that delegation for Wilson through all the long, weary ballots. Woodrow Wilson will still be a power in shaping conditions in the house when Underwood retires from the leadership.

"Daddy" Champ.

The house was one day discussing the subject of a system of public buildings by which all within a certain limit of cost might be built upon the same plans. Speaker Clark became interested in the debate.

"I am the daddy of this idea of standardization of public buildings," said Champ. "I have fought for it for fifteen years." He then asked Chairman Frank Clark of the public buildings committee what climate had to do with the shape and dimensions of the buildings.

"A good deal," replied the Florida man, and he went on to explain how damp climates affected brickwork and how different dimensions affected the air conditions in different climates.

Speaker Declares for International Disarmament.

Louisville, Oct. 6.—Speaker Champ Clark of the house of representatives declared for international disarmament as the surest means of guaranteeing world peace in an address delivered at the closing exercises of the Perry centennial celebration.

He praised the valor of the American soldiers in the War of 1812 and declared the crowning glory of their heroism was the 100 years of peace which have followed between Great Britain and the United States.

TRAPPER LOSES HIS LIFE IN FLAMES

Fire Sweeps Business Section of Warroad, Minn.

Warroad, Minn., Oct. 6.—Warroad was visited by another disastrous fire, destroying the entire business section of Main street. Fire broke out in the kitchen of the Slatten boarding house, about the center of Main street, and, due to a strong northeasterly wind, this section was soon a mass of flames, spreading both east and west. Owing to the buildings being a few feet apart and of frame structure it was impossible to control the flames.

The Warroad fire department was on the scene in a few minutes after the alarm was turned in. Good work confined the fire to Main street only. It was only through the work of the fire department that the remainder of the city was saved. The Lakewood hotel, the only building saved on Main street, one of the largest and best known hotels in Northern Minnesota, was in constant danger.

The only fatality was that of Harry Gibson, a trapper. He was sleeping on the second floor of the Slatten boarding house.

TWO BURNED IN WRECKAGE

Conductor and Brakeman Lose Lives in Collision.

Great Falls, Mont., Oct. 6.—Conductor Harry Williams and brakeman W. C. Powers of extra freight No. 1835 on the Great Northern road were killed and their bodies burned to a crisp as the result of a rear end collision six miles west of this city, near Ulm. Their train was making its way to the city, followed by extra No. 1099, composed of a baggage car and caboose, which was returning from Butte after taking a special there to carry Hon. Cornelius F. Kelley and his party of copper mine magnates. The trains were running in the teeth of a snow blizzard.

After the crash the wreckage took fire and the freight caboose and two stock cars were burned.

BODY FOUND ON PRAIRIE

Woman Apparently Strangled With Heavy Cord.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—The body of a woman, believed to be that of Miss Ida Leegson, her clothing torn to shreds and scattered about her, was found on a prairie near Argo, Ill., a suburb.

She apparently had been strangled with a heavy cord which lay a few feet from the body. Fresh automobile tracks indicated that the woman had been murdered at some distant place.

Cards and papers found among the woman's effects caused the belief that she may have been Miss Ida Leegson, who formerly lived at the home of W. K. Morris in this city.

Kidnapped, Then Murdered.

New York, Oct. 6.—The delivery in a macaroni box of the body of a golden haired little girl apparently murdered, to the Harlem morgue, set detectives at work on the theory that the child had been kidnapped for ransom and murdered when hope of obtaining the reward failed. The child's head was badly bruised and blackened.

TEAMS FINISH SCHEDULES

World's Championship Baseball Series on This Week.

New York, Oct. 6.—Major league baseball for 1913 has closed so far as the regular schedules are concerned. This week will see the start—and possibly the finish—of the world's championship series between the respective flag winners—the New Yorks of the National and the Phillies of the American league.

Preparation for the "big series" practically has monopolized baseball attention for the last few days, but several interesting contests for place have been going on among clubs in each organization.

New York Officials Want Felker to Postpone Decision.

Concord, N. H., Oct. 6.—New York state officials have asked Governor Felker to postpone for a time his decision in the matter of the extradition of Harry K. Thaw from New Hampshire. The governor said he probably would grant the request.

Harry K. Thaw spent the day quietly at his hotel, where he received a visit from his sister, Mrs. George G. Whitney. After her departure Thaw issued a statement of 1,000 words in which he reviewed again rumors as to new legal proceedings in New York.

Henry Spencer Admits Committing Fourteen Murders.

WOMAN HIS LATEST VICTIM

Prisoner Relates to Chicago Police Officials How He Killed a Dancing Teacher at Wheaton, Ill., Recently and Asserts That Most of His Crimes Were Done for Robbery.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Mrs. Mildred Allison Rexroat, the dancing teacher who was shot to death at Wheaton, Ill., a week ago, was the victim of a modern Bluebeard, who, according to his own confession, had killed thirteen others in as many years.

Henry Spencer, arrested in a room near the South Side levee district, confessed that he not only killed Mrs. Rexroat, but that he had slain fourteen persons.

He was positively identified as the mysterious Mr. Spencer, with whom Mrs. Rexroat left Chicago on the night she was killed. Mrs. Rexroat's blood stained rattan suit case was found in his room, as was the revolver with which he said he had killed her.

The police, while in doubt as to the full truth of Spencer's amazing confession, are confident that they had found a wholesale murderer and that he will be proved to have killed at least several of those whose death he described in a long confession.

Spencer's story was so startling that it probably would have received no credence had not the bloody suitcase and the revolver confirmed at least part of his statement.

Killed Two Policemen.

All of his murders except two, he declared, had been for the purposes of robbery. The two policemen, Pennell and Devine, shot to death twelve years ago, he said he killed to escape being arrested.

"I intended to kill Mrs. A. J. Scofield, the proprietor of the rooming house where I have been living," he said. "If I hadn't been arrested at just this time I would have killed her."

Spencer was arrested in a rooming house near the South Side levee district. A woman with whom he is said formerly to have lived told the police that on the night of Sept. 25 Spencer came to her house. His shoes were covered with dust and he showed a diamond ring resembling the one worn by Mrs. Rexroat. He also took a revolver from his pocket and removed an empty shell which he threw from the window.

Among the other murders Spencer admitted were those of Policemen Pennell and Devine several years ago.

"I met Mrs. Rexroat two months ago at a dance hall," Spencer said in his written confession, "right after she got a divorce from her first husband. I got acquainted without any trouble; nobody introduced us. I took her home that night and we decided to be good friends.

Thought Him a Farmer.

"After that night I saw her three or four nights a week for several weeks. She thought I was a farmer and would be easy pickings, so I tried to keep that impression with her."

Spencer admitted that robbery was his only purpose in killing Mrs. Rexroat.

Spencer told the police that he had killed ten persons since his late release from the Illinois state penitentiary in September, 1912, and four, a man and a woman and Policemen Pennell and Devine before that.

Except in the slaying of the policemen who, Spencer said, were shot by himself and a companion named Murphy, in escaping for burglary, the killings were all for purposes of robbery.

The police cannot account for all of the victims Spencer claims to have slain. The only victim Spencer was able to name was Fannie C. Thompson, who probably is the woman he said he killed before he started on his alleged career of murder. Spencer told his gruesome story calmly to Captain Halpin and a roomful of detectives and newspaper men. He said that he never drank nor smoked, but that he chewed tobacco and smoked opium. He had not, however, the appearance of a drug addict.

"Well," replied the sensible boy, "what does k-a-t spell?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Great Events From Little Causes.

While staying at the court of Frederick II. of Prussia Voltaire presented Mme. de Pompadour's compliments to the king, who scornfully replied, "I don't know her." Out of vengeance for so much insult, as she deemed it, madame induced the weak minded Louis XV. to convert his country's long standing hostility against Austria into friendship. A Franco-Austrian army then took the field against Prussia, and as it was an easy matter for madame to enlist the practical sympathy of Elizabeth of Russia, who had been the subject of Frederick's indiscreet remarks also, half a million lives were lost.—London Notes and Queries.

A Pertinent Question.
There are great men who cannot spell, and small people who object to it. "Spell 'cat,'" said the teacher to the boy at the tail end of the class. "K-a-t," replied the boy. "Silly," replied the teacher. "Can't you spell cat?" "Well," replied the sensible boy, "what does k-a-t spell?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it incurable, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, rendered it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Catarrh cure in the world. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They also cure a hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists. Take Hall's Catarrh Pills for constipation.

LOCALS DEFEAT LITTLE FALLS

Brainerd High School Victorious in Fast Gridiron Battle on Saturday Afternoon

Saturday was a red letter day in local high school circles, for the gridiron representatives of the school defeated the fast Little Falls team by the score of 18 to 6.

Brainerd won the toss and chose to have Little Falls kick to them.
By a series of line plunges Brainerd line. The first quarter ended with the ball in Brainerd's possession on the eighteen yard line.

In the second quarter through two line bucks the ball was brought to Little Falls six yard line. Capt. Day then crossed the goal for the first touchdown of the game. Hemstead missed goal, kicking being very difficult on account of the wet ball.

Little Falls then kicked to Brainerd and by a series of end runs the ball was brought to the fifteen yard line. The most notable of these being two runs by Hemstead around left end each netting 30 yards. Capt.
Day then went over for the second touchdown from the fifteen yard line.
Orne missed goal.

The third quarter opened with Brainerd kicking to Little Falls and all through this quarter both teams played steady football, few gains being made and at no time was either goal in danger. The quarter ended with the ball in Brainerd's possession on the thirty-five yard line.

In the fourth quarter through a series of line plunges Brainerd carried the ball to the 22 yard line when Koop skirted right end for the third touchdown. Orne missed goal.

Brainerd kicked to Little Falls and by a forward pass they carried the ball to Brainerd's two yard line. On the next play Little Falls fumbled and Levine recovered the ball over the goal giving Little Falls their only touchdown. Longely missed goal.

NITROGLYCERINE TO BLOW TO BITS

A. P. Lindberg Finds Bottle of Death-
Dealing Stuff in Country
Road Near City

HE PICKS IT UP IN TIME

And Saves Two Autos from Destruction Near the Oak Lawn
School House

A. P. Lindberg, of Brainerd, who makes his home with his son, A. S.
Lindberg, found a bottle of nitroglyc-erine on the East Oak street road near the Oak Lawn school house.

A few minutes later two automobiles dashed down the road and over he very spot where the nitroglycerine had laid. Mr. Lindberg at the time did not know what was in the bottle and after the cars passed he examined it more minutely and was scared to see what kind of death-dealing stuff
he had picked up.

There was enough in the bottle to blow both cars to pieces and not leave enough of them to tell the story. Mr.
Lindberg buried the bottle in a safe place and later reported the story to his son.

MUSICAL CLUB

Miss Esther Erhart, Pianist, of Chicago, Delights Members at Their First Meeting

Miss Esther Erhart, of Chicago, who is Mrs. Ide's guest, was enthusiastically received by the Musical club at their first meeting of the year Saturday afternoon. For the past three years Miss Erhart has been studying in Vienna and it is hoped that she may see fit to open a studio in Brainerd.
During the program Miss Erhart played, Nocturne, Opus 15, No. 2
by Chopin and Rhapsodie No. 12 Liszt and responded to enthusiastic encores.

The president, Mrs. Henry I. Cohen, opened the meeting with a most pleasing address in which she spoke of the good spirit that pervaded the club in the entertainment of the State Federation and told something of the expressions of gratitude on the part of the officers and prominent workers in the federation for courtesies extended them while in Brainerd. She also told of plans to organize a philanthropic department and read a letter from the Civic Health committee in which they asked the Musical club to take their work under its supervision. In conclusion Mrs. Cohen reviewed briefly the club's ac-and urged the members to renewed activity for the future.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served and a general reception given to teachers and

ABOUT WORLD'S SERIES

Predictions are that The Giants Will Have a Walkaway and that Athletics Will Win

Reading the dope in the Sunday papers one comes to the conclusion that the Giants will win in a walkaway and that the Athletics will win in a canter. With such beautiful unanimity regarding the winning qualities of both teams, little, old
New York and staid, placid Philadelphia must be betting even on the games.

"The Athletics will lose the world's series this year because of a weak pitching staff," said one dope writer.
"The Athletics will win the series because of their heavy hitting and brilliant fielding," says another.

Some writeups never mention Bush.
He's the lad that pulled a game out of the fire last week when Plank and Shawkey both blew up and Bush went in with three men on bases and one out and won the game. "It was cold weather and Plank and Shawkey were not in their usual form," said one paper. Funny the cold didn't affect Bush.

"Joe Bush, (that's Leslie's nickname) one of Mack's youngsters, won't last over three innings if the Giants wait him out and don't hit until they have to. Bush strains every nerve and muscle in his body at every throw. He can't stand nine innings," says one writer. "Mr.
Plank is tired from overwork, Mr.
Bender is also faded and Mr. Coombs has a crick in his back. Dismal failure for the Athletics," says this writer.

Edward Lyell Fox lets out this dismal grunt: "The injury to Coombs has played havoc with the Mack pitching staff. On paper they look strong. There are Plank, Bender, Bush, Brown and Houck. The last named three youngsters are not the pitching sensations they are supposed to be. They are just fair box men.
With any other team but the Athletics behind them, you would never have heard of them. Superior fielding and batting has brought them as many games as has their own pitching. I do not think that because of any individual prowess they are a menace to the Giants.

Some papers pass up Bush entirely and don't mention him at all. The Minneapolis Tribune prints under the heading "Relief Pitchers of the Giants and Athletics," pictures of "Doc" Crandall and Bush. That's the right category for Bush, he's a pinch pitcher and if given his opportunity he will pull a game out of the fire when everything has blown up.
He turned the trick last week and can do it again.

The Dispatch has wired for special dope on Bush whenever he enters a game.

The Philadelphia North American says: "I fully expect to win the big series," said Connie Mack, breaking a silence of weeks and making his first definite prediction about the result of the games.

"The series will be spirited and peppery," he continued. "but I think we have the edge on the Giants, and I would be greatly surprised, indeed, were we to lose.

"New York is credited with having a far better pitching staff, but I can't see the logic of that argument. I have two first-class veterans in Bender and Plank. I don't want a better pitcher than Bender. There may be some who can stand harder work during the season, but there is none who can do better work.

"I only use Bender in important games, games that I must win, and he wins those kind of games for me.
Bender joined me in 1903, but he isn't old and decrepit. He was 30 years old last May, which means he is still in his prime.

"Plank may be older in years, but he hasn't pitched as many seasons as Mathewson. Mathewson is a grand twirler, but we took his measure in 1911, and also took Marquard's measure. It is said that we can't hit Tesreau or Demaree, but that's all a matter of speculation.

"Tesreau didn't help the Giants much last fall in the games with the Red Sox. Demaree is an unknown quantity in a big series. We might reply by saying that the Giants won't be able to hit Shawkey, Bush, Houck and Brown.

"Of my youths, Shawkey and Bush will very likely see service in the big games. Considering the whole situation, I don't see where the Giants have any more strength in the box than we have.

"The speed, dash, brains and battling and fielding skill of the Athletic players can't be denied. They are serene in mind and think no more of the coming series than they do of one in the championship season. I never mingled with cooler propositions. Not a one is worrying.

"Every man is physically fit. If we lose the series, we can't offer any alibis. But I don't think we will lose. We have too much strength to be beaten by the Giants, good as the latter are."

ABOUT WORLD'S SERIES

Predictions are that The Giants Will Have a Walkaway and that Athletics Will Win

Reading the dope in the Sunday papers one comes to the conclusion that the Giants will win in a walkaway and that the Athletics will win in a canter. With such beautiful unanimity regarding the winning qualities of both teams, Little, old New York and staid, placid Philadelphia must be betting even on the games.

"The Athletics will lose the world's series this year because of a weak pitching staff," said one dope writer. "The Athletics will win the series because of their heavy hitting and brilliant fielding," says another.

Some writeups never mention Bush. He's the lad that pulled a game out of the fire last week when Plank and Shawkey both blew up and Bush went in with three men on bases and one out and won the game. "It was cold weather and Plank and Shawkey were not in their usual form," said one paper. Funny the cold didn't affect Bush.

"Joe Bush, (that's Leslie's nickname) one of Mack's youngsters, won't last over three innings if the Giants wait him out and don't hit until they have to. Bush strains every nerve and muscle in his body at every throw. He can't stand nine innings," says one writer. "Mr. Plank is tired from overwork, Mr. Bender is also faded and Mr. Coombs has a crick in his back. Dismal failure for the Athletics," says this writer.

Edward Lyell Fox lets out this dismal grunt: "The injury to Coombs has played havoc with the Mack pitching staff. On paper they look strong. There are Plank, Bender, Bush, Brown and Houck. The last named three youngsters are not the pitching sensations they are supposed to be. They are just fair box men. With any other team but the Athletics behind them, you would never have heard of them. Superior fielding and batting has brought them as many games as has their own pitching. I do not think that because of any individual prowess they are a menace to the Giants.

Some papers pass up Bush entirely and don't mention him at all. The Minneapolis Tribune prints under the heading "Relief Pitchers of the Giants and Athletics," pictures of "Doc" Crandall and Bush. That's the right category for Bush, he's a pinch pitcher and if given his opportunity he will pull a game out of the fire when everything has blown up. He turned the trick last week and can do it again.

The Dispatch has wired for special dope on Bush whenever he enters a game. The Philadelphia North American says: "I fully expect to win the big series," said Connie Mack, breaking a silence of weeks and making his first definite prediction about the result of the games.

"The series will be spirited and peppery," he continued, "but I think we have the edge on the Giants, and I would be greatly surprised, indeed, were we to lose.

"New York is credited with having a far better pitching staff, but I can't see the logic of that argument. I have two first-class veterans in Bender and Plank. I don't want a better pitcher than Bender. There may be some who can stand harder work during the season, but there is none who can do better work.

"I only use Bender in important games, games that I must win, and he wins those kind of games for me. Bender joined me in 1903, but he isn't old and decrepit. He was 30 years old last May, which means he is still in his prime.

"Plank may be older in years, but he hasn't pitched as many seasons as Mathewson. Mathewson is a grand twirler, but we took his measure in 1911, and also took Marquard's measure. It is said that we can't hit Tesreau or Demaree, but that's all a matter of speculation.

"Tesreau didn't help the Giants much last fall in the games with the Red Sox. Demaree is an unknown quantity in a big series. We might reply by saying that the Giants won't be able to hit Shawkey, Bush, Houck and Brown.

"Of my youths, Shawkey and Bush will very likely see service in the big games. Considering the whole situation, I don't see where the Giants have any more strength in the box than we have.

"The speed, dash, brains and battling and fielding skill of the Athletic players can't be denied. They are serene in mind and think no more of the coming series than they do of one in the championship season. I never mingled with cooler propositions. Not a one is worrying.

"Every man is physically fit. If we lose the series, we can't offer any alibis. But I don't think we will lose. We have too much strength to be beaten by the Giants, good as the latter are."

BOATS GROW ON TREES.

West Indian Boys Can Get All of Them They Want.

When a West Indian boy wants a toy boat all he has to do is to visit a coconut tree. These trees bear great bunches of nuts among their drooping green leaves, and when the bunch first sprouts out in the form of a big bud it is inclosed within a hard, tough, woody case or spathe two or three feet long, eight or ten inches in diameter and tapering to a point at one end and to a slender stem at the other. In fact, it looks very much like a huge wooden cigar.

As the buds and flowers develop the spathe splits open, and the flower bunch continues to grow out beyond it until the nuts begin to ripen. By this time the spathe has become dry and hard and break off and drop to the ground of their own accord.

It is the spathe or bud coverings that the West Indian boys use for toy boats, and, while the dry and fallen ones will answer, better boats are made from the more flexible and partly green spathe still clinging to the flower stem.

The spathe as gathered from the tree is almost in the shape of a boat, and all that is necessary to transform it to a very seaworthy and fast sailing toy canoe is to sew the open end together and fit rudder, sail and seats or thwart.

When this is done the boat is almost an exact model of the big dugout canoes that the boys' fathers use for fishing. In fact, these dugouts were probably copied from one of the tree grown boats. —From "Harper's Book for Young Naturalists."

GRIPPED BY A LION

Livingstone's Fearful Ordeal and His Narrow Escape.

A BATTLE WITH A MANEATER.

The Wounded and Maddened Monster, In a Paroxysm of Dying Rage, Caught the Explorer In His Jaws and Shook Him as a Terrier Would a Rat.

David Livingstone, the famous African explorer and missionary, once had a singular encounter with a wounded lion that almost put an end to the explorer's remarkable career before it had fairly begun. But the story must be unfamiliar to many persons who have never read Dr. Livingstone's books. The adventure occurred while he was living among the Bakatlas, not far from the present town of Mafeking. This account is from his own narrative:

The people of Mabotsa were troubled by lions, which leaped into the cattle pens by night and destroyed their milk and draft animals. They even attacked the herds boldly by daylight, and although several expeditions against the wild beasts were planned the people had not the courage to carry them through successfully.

It is well known that if one in a troop of lions is killed the others leave that part of the country. I therefore went out with the people to help them destroy one of the marauders. We found the animals on a small hill covered with trees. The men formed round it in a circle and gradually closed up. Being below on the plain with a native schoolmaster named Mabaiwe, I saw one of the lions sitting on a piece of rock. Mabaiwe fired at him, and the lion hit the rock. The lion bit at the spot as a dog does at a stick or stone thrown at him, and then, leaping away, broke through the circle and escaped. The Bakatlas ought to have speared him in his attempt to get out, but they were afraid.

When the circle was reformed we saw two other lions in it, but dared not fire lest we should shoot some of the people. The beasts burst through the line, and as it was evident the men could not face their foes we turned back toward the village.

In going round the end of the hill I saw a lion sitting on a piece of rock about thirty yards off, with a little bush in front of him. I took good aim at him through the bush and fired both barrels.

The men called out, "He is shot, he is shot!" Others cried, "Let us go to him!"

I saw the lion's tail erect in anger and said, "Stop a little till I load again!" I was in the act of ramming down the bullets when I heard a shout, and, looking half round, I saw the lion in the act of springing at me.

He caught me by the shoulder, and we both came to the ground together. Growling horribly, he shook me as a terrier dog does a rat. The shock produced a stupor like that felt by a mouse in the grip of the cat. It caused a sort of dreaminess, in which there was no sense of pain or feeling of terror, although I was quite conscious of what was happening. This placidity is probably produced in all animals killed by the carnivora, and, if so, it is a merciful provision of the Creator for lessening the pain of death.

As he had one paw on the back of my head, I turned round to relieve myself of the weight and saw his eyes directed to Mabaiwe, who was aiming at him from a distance of ten or fifteen yards. The gun missed fire in both barrels. The animal immediately left me to attack him and bit his thigh. Another man, whose life I had saved after he had been tossed by a buffalo, tried to spear the lion, upon which he turned from Mabaiwe, and seized this fresh foe by the shoulder.

At that moment the bullets the beast had received took effect, and he fell down dead. The whole was the work of a few moments and must have been his paroxysm of dying rage. In order to take out the charm from him the Bakatlas on the following day made a huge bonfire over the carcass, which was declared to be the largest ever seen.

Besides crunching the bone into splinters, eleven of his teeth had penetrated the upper part of my arm. The bite of a lion resembles a gunshot wound. It is generally followed by a great deal of sloughing and discharge, and ever afterward pains are felt periodically in the part. I had on a tannin jacket, which I believe wiped off the virus from the teeth that pierced the flesh, for my two companions in the affray have both suffered from the usual pains, while I have escaped without the inconvenience of a false joint in my limb.

Value of Character.

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan emphasized character as a banker's most important asset, and recently Lord Cromer spoke of character as a government official's indispensable qualification, using these words: "I have always held that 75 per cent of the influence of British officials for good depends on character and only 25 per cent on brains. Mistakes arising from defective intelligence will generally admit of being rectified. Those which are due to defects of character are more often irremediable."

Old China.

The beauty of old china is often destroyed by brown spots which appear on the surface. An effective way to remove these is to bury the dish in the earth, covering it completely. The darker spots require more time to remove than the lighter ones. This method will not harm the most delicate china. —New York Telegram.

Universal.

"There is one thought which comes daily to every man."
"What's that?"
"That nothing is too good for him." —Chicago Record-Herald.

Either I will find a way or I will make one. —Sir Philip Sidney.

TWISTING THE LANGUAGE.

English Has Received Some Severe Jolts In The Philippines.

Baby talk is a highly developed language compared to the jargon American housewives talk to their Filipino house boys. But it usually conveys the meaning when accompanied by expressive gestures. At best, however, the performance of the command speaks well for native intuition.

Spanish construction of English words is another twist that our poor language gets in the Philippines. "No got" in the island is the most commonly used expression for "I haven't any." Similarly "no can do" means "I can't," and "no want" means "I don't want it." Not only between American and Filipino, but among Americans themselves, this twisted construction has largely supplanted the legitimate one.

With the soldier anything that belonged peculiarly to the Philippines was described as "bamboo." Now all colonials use the term. The "bamboo fleet" is the one assigned to Philippine waters, and the "bamboo government" is the Philippine civil government in distinction from the United States military.

Among other "soldierisms" (if I may be permitted this contribution to the new language) were certain pure Malay words. The list is continually growing, and now there are dozens of Tagalog and Moro expressions in constant use among the Americans. For example, there are "storm," "carabao," "bagulo," meaning "stomach," "paly," meaning an animal; "paly," meaning "rice," and "taw," meaning "man." Moro terms in common use are "amok," meaning "wild," "dato," meaning "chief," "kris," meaning a wavy edged knife, and "sarong," meaning a garment. —Review of Reviews.

Egged Off.

Phatt, after a brief experience on the road as Hamlet, returned to his old job in Canal street.

"How did you come to leave the stage?" I asked him one night.

"I had hints that I wasn't suited to it," he replied.

Thinking he meant the critics, I said: "Aha, the little birds told you, eh?"

"Well," he said, "they'd have become birds, I suppose, if they'd been allowed to hatch." —Detroit Free Press.

UNION OF TELEPHONE SERVICES ENDORSED

Union-Gazette, Newark, N. Y.

The wiremen have been doing their best to change the wires of the independent telephone company from its switchboard to the switchboard of the Bell company and the managers are of the opinion that the work can be completed so that all of the phones will be on one line by, possibly Sunday night. At any rate the work will be done by the first of the week and then those who have the Bell phone can talk with those who have the independent and vice versa.

This announcement will be met with the very greatest approval on the part of all users of the telephones as the two systems in town have been more or less of a nuisance as well as an extra expense. One system can do the work as well as two and all join in welcoming this change. —Advt.

A Three Headed Town.
When the town of Tolono, Ill., was settled the question of a name arose. The site chosen for the town was at a point where three farms "cornered." These farms were owned by three of the early settlers of the region, by the names of Todd, Logan and Noyes.

After considerable discussion it was proposed that the town be named after the three men who originally owned the site. How to manage the name was a problem at first, but finally some genius suggested that only the first two letters of each name be used. This was agreed to, and the name Tolono came into existence. —Ladies' Home Journal.

Our Funny Language.

A sleeper is one who sleeps. A sleeper is that in which a sleeper sleeps. A sleeper is that on which the sleeper runs while the sleeper sleeps. Therefore, while the sleeper sleeps in the sleeper the sleeper carries the sleeper over the sleeper under the sleeper until the sleeper, which carries the sleeper, jumps the sleeper and wakes the sleeper in the sleeper by striking the sleeper under the sleeper on the sleeper, and there is no longer any sleep for the sleeper sleeping in the sleeper on the sleeper.
